Community Night Out Celebration Builds Partnerships in North Houston District

HOUSTON – The North Houston District recently hosted a community night out for families in the apartment communities surrounding Thomas R. Wussow Park. The family-friendly event was an opportunity for attendees to interact with neighbors, meet local first responders and learn about resources and partners who provide services in the area.

“The goal of this event is to increase engagement so that we all understand that we share a role in building a strong community,” said Tracy Harrison, the District’s public safety director. “Our partners stepped up in a big way to create an event where our families could have fun, meet local officers and even get information about their health,” Harrison added.

Event participants included Aldine ISD Police Department, Aldine-Greenspoint YMCA, Ambassadors for Christ, City of Houston 311, Harris County Sheriff’s Office, Harvest Time Church, Home Depot, Houston Fire Department, Houston Police Department, Lighthouse Church, Lone Star College, Madera Residential, Spartan Security, Texas Department of Public Safety, TX Excel Property Management, U.S. Army, U.S. Marines, UT Physicians and Villa Serena Communities.
